FOOCHOW GRANITE FLOORED
DOCK.

The above Dock has been in full working order for the last four years. Length 300 feet, width at bottom 40 feet, depth of water on the sill, springs, average 17 feet, near 14 feet. The Dock in ordinary Tides runs dry to the Blocks and is pumped out by Steam.

Sealed Boxes containing the correspondence of Box Holders will be received at the window set apart for the purpose, on the East Side of the building.

All correspondence for places to which payment is compulsory must be despatched in Hongkong Postage Stamps.

Inadequately-stamped Letters addressed to the United Kingdom will be sent on, charged with a fine of One Shilling in addition to the postage.

Letters posted after 7 A.M. on the 23rd Instant will not be forwarded unless the Late Fee as well as the postage is paid.

Letters insufficiently stamped or unstamped addressed to places to which they cannot be forwarded unpaid, will be opened and returned to the writer as early as possible, but no guarantee can be given that such Letters, if posted after 8 P.M. on the 22nd Instant will be returned until after the mail is closed.

Postage Stamps should be placed on the upper right hand corner of the correspondence, except in cases where they may be used in payment of "Late Fees," when the Stamp or Stamps representing the late fee should be placed on the lower left-hand corner.

All transactions in fractional parts of a Dollar will be conducted in the Coins prescribed by Ordinance 1, of 1864, and the Proclamation of the 22nd January, 1864, and no other Coin, but those therein specified will either be received or given in change as fractional parts of a Dollar.

Payment for Postage Stamps must be made in the current Dollars of the Colony or Bank Note.

Money Orders on any of the Money Order Offices in the United Kingdom will be granted until 5 P.M. on the 22nd Inst.

F. W. MITCHELL,
Postmaster General.

General Post Office, Hongkong.

Hongkong, February 12, 1868.

1. It is hereby notified for general information that the Contract between the Government of Mauritius and the Union
Steam-ship Company, for the Conveyance of Mails once a Month between Ceylon and Mauritius, and between Mauritius and Natal, having terminated, the correspondence for Mauritius will be forwarded from this Office in the Mail for Aden, from whence it will be sent to its destination by the French Mail Packets leaving Aden for Réunion and Mauritius on the 23rd of each Month.

2. No alteration has been made in the rates of Postage on correspondence addressed to Mauritius.

3. As the communication with Natal and the Cape of Good Hope is thus cut off, the correspondence for those Colonies, unless marked to be forwarded by Private Ship, will, in future, be sent in the Mails for London at the following rates of Postage,
which must be paid in advance, viz.:—

Upon Letters sent by Post at Southampton, 46 cents each 1/2 oz.
When sent by way of Marseille, 54 " " "
Newspaper via Southampton, 4 " " "
Newspapers via Marseilles, 6 " " "

Book Packets via Southampton, 10 " under 4
oz., 20 cents, above 4 oz. and not exceeding 8 oz.; and 20 cents for every additional 8 oz.

Book Packets via Marseilles, 14 cents
under 4 oz.; 28 cents above for and not exceeding 8 oz.; and 28 cents for every additional 8 oz.

F. W. MITCHELL,
Postmaster General.

General Post Office, Hongkong.

9th September, 1868.

It is hereby notified for general information that henceforward closed mails for the United Kingdom will be made up at this Office and forwarded to London by the United States Mail Packets via San Francisco.

Correspondence intended to be forwarded by this route must be addressed via "San Francisco."

Letters, Newspapers, Books and Patterns,
will be liable to the same rates of postage
as those sent by the British Mail Packets
via Southampton viz.:—

For Letters, 24 cents per half-ounce.

For each Newspaper not exceeding 4 ounces, 4 cents.

For a packet of Books or Patterns, 8 cents
per 4 ounces.

The Postage must in all cases be paid in advance; correspondence not fully prepaid
will be sent via Suez.

THE OUTCASTS OF POKER FLAT.
(From the "Overland Monthly")

At Mr. Oakhurst's gambling-table, in the town of Poker Flat on the 10th of the twenty-third of November, 1859, it was conscious of a change in its much diminished fortune, the preceding night. Two or three men, conversing earnestly together, passed as he approached, and exchanged significant glances. There was a Sabbath still in the air, which in its settlement, tended to Sabbath influences, looked ominous.

Mr. Oakhurst's calm, handsome face betrayed small concern at these indications. Whether he was conscious of any predipping came, was another question. "I expect they're after somebody," he reflected. "It's me." He returned to his poker, the handkerchief with which he had been whipping away the red dust of Poker Flat from his meat boots, and quietly discharged his mind of any further conjecture.

At point of fact, Poker Flat was "after somebody." It had lately suffered the loss of several thousand dollars, two valuable horses, and a prominent citizen. It was experiencing a spasm of virtuous reaction, quite as lawless and ungovernable as any of the acts that had provoked it. A secret committee had determined to rid the town of all "improper persons." This was done painlessly in regard of two men who were then hanging from the boughs of a sycamore in the gulch; and temporarily in the establishment of certain other objectionable characters. "I regret to say that some of these were ladies." It had but due to the sex, however, to state that their impropriety was "professional," and it was only in such established standards of evil that Pd. had ventured to sit in judgment.

Mr. Oakhurst was right in supposing that he was included in this category. A few of the committee had urged hanging him as a possible example, and a "sure" method of reimbursing themselves from his pockets, of detaining him from his camp. But, unluckily, "The Innocent" met the objection by assuring the party that he was provided with an extra mule loaded with provisions, and by the discovery of a rude camp at a dog-house near the trail. "Piney can stay with Mr. Oakhurst," said "The Innocent," pointing to the Duchess, "and I can shift for myself."

Nothing but Mr. Oakhurst's admonishing voice saved Uncle Billy from bursting into a roar of laughter. As it was, he felt compelled to retire up the cañon until he could recover his gravity. There he confided the joke to the tall pine trees, with many shreds of his leg, contortions of his face, and the usual probability. But when he returned to the party, he found them seated by a fire—for the air had grown strangely chill, and the sky overcast—in apparently amiable conversation. Piney was actually talking in an impulsive, girlish fashion to the Duchess, who was listening with an interest and animation she had not shown for many days. "The Innocent" was holding forth, apparently with equal effect, to Mr. Oakhurst and Mother Shipton, who was actually relaxing into amiability. "Is this you a d-d picnic?" said Uncle Billy, with inward scorn, as he surveyed the sylvan group, the glancing fire-light and the tethered animals in the foreground. Suddenly an idea mingled with the alcoholic fumes that disturbed his brain. It was apparently of a jocular nature, for he felt impelled to slap his leg again and crum his fist into his mouth.

As the shadows crept slowly up the mountain, a slight breeze rocked the tops of the pine trees, and moaned through their long and gloomy aisles. The ruined cabin, packed and covered with pine boughs, was set apart for the ladies. At the lovers parted, they unaffectedly changed a parting kiss, so honest and sincere that it might have been heard above the swaying pines.

The frail-Duchess and the malevolent Mother Shipton were probably too stunned to remark upon this last evidence of simplicity, and so turned without a word to the hut. The fire was replenished, the men lay down before the door, and in a few minutes were asleep.

Mr. Oakhurst was a light sleeper. To-ward morning he awoke benumbed and cold. As he stirred the dying fire, the wind which was now blowing strongly, brought to his cheek that which caused the fire to leave it—snow!

He started to his feet with the intention of awakening the sleepers, for there was no time to lose. But turning to where Uncle Billy had been lying, he found him gone. A suspicion leaped to his brain and a curse to his lips. He ran to the spot where the mules had been tethered; they were no longer there. The tracks were already rapidly disappearing in the snow.

The momentary excitement brought Mr. Oakhurst back to the fire, with his usual calm. He did not waken the sleepers. The innocent slumbered peacefully, with a smile on his good-humored, freckled face; the virgin Piney slept beside her fairer sister, as sweetly as though attended by celestial guardians, and Mr. Oakhurst, drawing his blanket over his shoulders, stroked his mustache and waited for the dawn. It came slowly in a whirling mist of snow-flakes, that dizzied and confused the eye. What could be seen of the landscape appeared magically changed. He looked over the valley, and summed up the present and future in two words—"Snowed in!"

A careful inventory of the provisions, which, fortunately for the party, had been stored within the hut, and so escaped the felonious fingers of Uncle Billy, disclosed the fact that with care and prudence they might last ten days longer. "That is," said Mr. Oakhurst, "so far as to The Innocent, 'if you're willing to board us. If you sin—and perhaps you'd better not—you can wait till Uncle Billy gets back with provisions.' For some occult reason, Mr. Oakhurst could not bring himself to disclose Uncle Billy's rascality, and so offered the hypothesis that he had wandered from the camp and had accidentally stampeded the animals. He dropped a warning to the Duchess and Mother Shipton, who of course knew the fact of their associate's defection.

"They'll find out the truth about me all, when they find out anything," he added, significantly, "and there's no good frightening them now."

Tom Simson not only pit all his worldly stores at the disposal of Mr. Oakhurst, but seemed to enjoy the prospect of that enforced seclusion. "We'll have a good camp for a week, and then the snow'll all go back together." The cheerful gaiety of the young man and Mr. Oakhurst's calm infected the old era. The innocent, with gloomy walls that rose a thousand feet sheer above the circling pines around him; at the sky, ominously clouded, at the valley below, already deepening into shadow. And doing so, suddenly he heard his own name called.

A horse slowly ascended the trail, in the fresh, open face of the new-comer, Mr. Oakhurst recognized Tom Simson, otherwise known as "The Innocent" of Sandy Bar. He had met him some months before over a "little game," and had with perfect equanimity won the entire fortune amounting to some forty dollars—of that guileless youth. After the game was finished, Mr. Oakhurst drew the youthful spectator behind the door and thus addressed him: "Sonny, you're a good little man, but you can't gamble worth a cent. Don't try it over again." He then handed him his money back, pushed him gently from the room, and so made a devoted slave of Tom Simson.

There was a remembrance of this, in his boyish and enthusiastic greeting of Mr. Oakhurst. He had started, he said, to go to Poker Flat to seek his fortune. "Alone?" No, not exactly alone; in fact, a girl—she had run away with Piney Woods. Don't Mr. Oakhurst remember Piney? She that used to wait for him on the table at the Temperance House? They had been engaged a long time, but old Jake Woods had objected, and so they had run away, and were going to Poker Flat to be married, the acts that had provoked it. A secret committee had determined to rid the town of all "improper persons." This was done painlessly in regard of two men who were then hanging from the boughs of a sycamore in the gulch; and temporarily in the establishment of certain other objectionable characters. "I regret to say that some of these were ladies." It had but due to the sex, however, to state that their impropriety was "professional," and it was only in such established standards of evil that Pd. had ventured to sit in judgment.

Mr. Oakhurst seldom troubled himself with sentiment. Still less with propriety. But he had a vague idea that the situation was not felicitous. He remained, however, in his presence of mind sufficiently to kick Uncle Billy, who was about to say something, and Uncle Billy was sober enough to recognize in Mr. Oakhurst's kick a superior power that would not beat trifling. He then endeavored to dissuade Tom Simson from delaying further, but in vain. He even pointed out the fact that there was no provision, nor means of making a camp. But, unluckily, "The Innocent" met the objection by assuring the party that he was provided with an extra mule loaded with provisions, and by the discovery of a rude camp at a dog-house near the trail. "Piney can stay with Mr. Oakhurst," said "The Innocent," pointing to the Duchess, "and I can shift for myself."

And doing so, suddenly he heard his own name called.

He was used to fine things at Poker Flat," said Piney. The Duchess turned away sharply to conceal something that reddened her cheeks through its professional tint, and Mother Shipton requested Piney not to "chatter." But when Mr. Oakhurst returned from a weary search for the trail, he heard the sound of happy laughter echoing from the rocks. He stopped in some alarm, and his thoughts, first naturally reverted to the whisky—which he had probably caught. "And yet it's not something so bad as whisky," said the gambler. It was not until he caught sight of the blinding fire through the still, blinding storm, and the group around it, that he settled the conviction that it was "square fun."

Whether Mr. Oakhurst had caught his cards with the whisky as something dubious, or with the handkerchief with which he had been whipping away the red dust of Poker Flat from his meat boots, and quietly discharged his mind of any further conjecture.

There was a remembrance of this, in his boyish and enthusiastic greeting of Mr. Oakhurst. He had started, he said, to go to Poker Flat to seek his fortune. "Alone?" "It's me." He returned to his poker, the handkerchief with which he had been whipping away the red dust of Poker Flat from his meat boots, and quietly discharged his mind of any further conjecture.

There was a remembrance of this, in his boyish and enthusiastic greeting of Mr. Oakhurst. He had started, he said, to go to Poker Flat to seek his fortune. "Alone?" No, not exactly alone; in fact, a girl—she had run away with Piney Woods. Don't Mr. Oakhurst remember Piney? She that used to wait for him on the table at the Temperance House? They had been engaged a long time, but old Jake Woods had objected, and so they had run away, and were going to Poker Flat to be married, the acts that had provoked it. A secret committee had determined to rid the town of all "improper persons." This was done painlessly in regard of two men who were then hanging from the boughs of a sycamore in the gulch; and temporarily in the establishment of certain other objectionable characters. "I regret to say that some of these were ladies." It had but due to the sex, however, to state that their impropriety was "professional," and it was only in such established standards of evil that Pd. had ventured to sit in judgment.

Mr. Oakhurst's calm, handsome face betrayed small concern at these indications. Whether he was conscious of any predipping came, was another question. "I expect they're after somebody," he reflected. "It's me." He returned to his poker, the handkerchief with which he had been whipping away the red dust of Poker Flat from his meat boots, and quietly discharged his mind of any further conjecture.

LEA AND PERRINS'

CELEBRATED

Worcestershire Sauce,

DECLARED BY CONNOISSEURS.

TO BE

THE ONLY GOOD SAUCE.

CAUTION AGAINST FRAUD.

The success of this most delicious and unrivalled Condiment having caused certain dealers to apply the name of "Worcestershire Sauce" to their own inferior compounds, the Public is hereby informed that the only way to secure the genuine is to

ASK FOR LEA & PERRINS' SAUCE, and to see that their names are upon the wrapper, label, stopper, &c.

Some of the foreign markets having been supplied with a spurious Worcestershire Sauce, upon the wrapper and labels of which the names of Lea and Perrins have been forged, L. & P. give notice that they have furnished their correspondents with power of attorney to take instant proceedings against Manufacturers and Vendors of such, or any other imitations by which their right may be infringed.

Ask for LEA & PERRINS' SAUCE, and see Name on Wrapper, Label, Bottle, and Stopper.

Wholesale and for Export, by the Proprietors, Worcester: Cross & Blackwell, London, &c. &c. &c. By Grocers and Oilmen universally.
